Need an address?

Get one that moves with you

We all rely on a range of services to stay afloat in life. But - for everything from bank accounts and job applications, to post and a driver's license - you need a fixed address to access them.

If you lose your address - whether you're evicted, forced to leave, or running away - you lose access to the services you need every day, let alone during a time of crisis

ProxyAddress lets you privately 'borrow' an address to keep your life intact during times of instability. It provides safe access all to the services you might need to regain or maintain health and independence.
